Venue: Annpurna Kanya Aashram Shala, Madhi

Faculty Coordinator: Dr. Arpita Vyas and Mr. Vijay Dayama

Participating Students: SYBCom (Male: 21; Female: 38)

Event Description

As part of the National Service Scheme (NSS) initiative, the second-year B.Com students of B.V. Patel Institute of Commerce, UkaTarsadia University, under the guidance Dr Arpita Vyas, NSS Coordinator and Mr Vijay Dayama, visited Annpurnakanya AashramShala at Madhi Village to engage in a social service activity. The visit aimed to contribute to the community and support the children at the Aashram Shala through various efforts, including the distribution of chocolates and educational note books.

The objective of the Visit

The primary objectives of the visit were:

1. To provide support to the students of Aashram Shala.
2. To contribute to the welfare of the underprivileged children.
3. To promote the values of social service, empathy, and community engagement.
4. To foster a sense of responsibility and social consciousness among the students of BVPIC.

During the visit, several activities were conducted to engage with the students and ensure that the objectives were met. These included:

1. Interaction with the Children:

The students of Uka Tarsadia University spent quality time interacting with the children at Aashram Shala. The interaction aimed to inspire the children, encourage them to pursue their studies, and provide moral support. The students shared their personal experiences and motivated the children to stay focused on their education and make the best of the opportunities available to them.

2. Distribution of Chocolates:

To bring a smile to the faces of the children and spread some joy, the NSS volunteers distributed chocolates to all the children at the Aashram Shala. The act was well-received, and it helped in fostering a bond of happiness and goodwill between the volunteers and the children.

3. Note Book Distribution:

In line with the educational mission of the visit, the students of Uka Tarsadia University also distributed notes books to help the children with their learning.

4. Interactive Sessions and Games:

In addition to the educational initiatives, the volunteers organized fun games and activities. These activities were designed not only to provide enjoyment but also to encourage teamwork, communication, and critical thinking among the children.

5. Health and Hygiene Awareness:

The volunteers also conducted a brief session on basic health and hygiene, emphasizing the importance of cleanliness, personal hygiene, and maintaining a healthy lifestyle. This session aimed at creating awareness among the children about how they can take care of themselves in their everyday lives.

Impact of the Visit

The visit had a profound impact on both the volunteers and the children:

1. For the Children:

- The children felt loved, cared for, and valued. The distribution of chocolates and educational materials boosted their morale and motivation to pursue their education.
- The interaction with the university students served as an inspiration and gave them hope for a better future.

2. For the Volunteers:

- The volunteers gained a deeper understanding of the challenges faced by underprivileged children. This experience instilled a sense of empathy, compassion, and responsibility.
- The initiative reinforced the importance of giving back to the community and encouraged the students to continue participating in social service activities.

3. Community Impact:

- The efforts made by the students contributed to raising awareness about the importance of education and basic health among the children.
- The activity helped in building a bridge of goodwill between Uka Tarsadia University and the local community, encouraging future collaborations.

This experience serves as a reminder of the significance of collective effort in creating positive change and supporting the underprivileged sections of society. The NSS program continues to play a pivotal role in shaping socially responsible and compassionate individuals.

The NSS team and the second-year B.Com students would like to thank Aashram Shala, Madhi Village's staff and administration for their cooperation and support during the event. Special thanks also go to the volunteers who made the event a success and to the faculty members who guided and encouraged the students throughout the process.
